WHERE THEY PLAY TO-DAY.

Roanoke at Richmond.
Newport at Portsmouth.
Norfolk at Petersburg.

After maintaining the lead established for him by his compatriots for seven full innings, Ted Sloan, our most prominent exponent of the slingshot club, was hurled, took a slant along the backward trail in the eighth, during which Roanoke piled up a quartet of tallies, gaining a three-run lead and the second game in the series with Richmond. The score was 8 to 4.

Aside from the very effective onslaught of the visiting Welchites, there was nothing to stir the soul of the most enthusiastic local fans. The game, despite the heavy cannonading of the wrecking crew from the southward, dragged wearily through its one hour and forty minutes of life. Some near-brilliant plays were started, only to prove abortive when a slip-up marred preconceived plans.

Richmond made two runs in the second inning, when Berrier neatly outed his hunt towards first base, advanced when Lefty Hill, who was on the ground for the visitors, walked, and Sloan in succession, and both Berrier and Weertner counted on Bunting's sacrifice to drive home the runs. Sloan was thrown out at third on the relay back to the diamond.

The other half of local countenance came in the fifth, when Sloan walked his second time, and after two were out, Snyder and Gray hit Dolly for two bases. The combination of these two plays, which tells the story of the duel of tallies.

Chief among the many effective performances of the visitors was the home run jam perpetrated by Mr. Paul Irmscher in that fatal eighth, which happened while the visitors were on the club when the ways. Irmscher drove the sphere deep a-field to the right, and the ball rolled in around the horn unimpeded, with Cook traveling peacefully ahead of him. In the ninth, when the home team made the distance safely.

It would indeed be cruel to tell all of the details of this last sanguinary strife, wherein our hopefuls were so woefully blighted. We shall merely tell the high places. It was the fourth before the men could score. Cook hit for three bases in the middle field and was followed by a home run by Sloan. On the couple of misuses by Newton, and a steal of the home plate by Cook, who was rather prompt in getting around the bases, brought two in the sixth. And then happened the eighth, with the sacrifice of Weertner, which set the fourth before the men could score.

There were sins of commission and omission on the part of the Colts, but what the use, they're all in a bad game. The two teams offer the material this afternoon, when Jim Foxon will essay to nab victory. The score: Richmond, 8; Roanoke, 4.

SEEK TO ENJOIN

HEINIE SCHULZ

New York, June 19.—In an interview at the Polo Grounds this afternoon, Heinie Schulz, president of the New York League, asserted the Yankees had been authorized to apply for an injunction restraining Heinie Schulz from playing with the Buffalo Federal League.

He said the Federal League was doomed to an ignominious death at the end of the season. It is asserted that long, which he doubted. He asserted Walter Johnson has a legal right to contract, and with him Washington next year, and Eddie Collins has a three-year contract of his own making with the Philadelphia Athletics.

NORFOLK ANNEXES BOTH

GAMES WITH GOOBERS

First a Pitchers' Duel, But Second Proves Runaway Match for Them.

Petersburg, Va., June 19.—Norfolk took both games of the doubleheader played with Petersburg this afternoon. In the first game, the Goobers' battle between Hirsch and Markie, with Hirsch having decidedly the best of the game, the Goobers downed the Goobers to a triple, a double and three singles, while Hirsch was hit for two triples, two doubles and three singles. Norfolk's hits were nearly all made on the pitcher's side, when men were on bases, while Petersburg's were made when the bases were clear, and the sacrifice hits and squeeze plays had to be resorted to to have the men over the plate.

In the second game, Captain Hirsch, who had been scattered hits and allowing but seven scattered hits and three runs, was hit for two triples, two doubles and three singles. Norfolk's hits were nearly all made on the pitcher's side, when men were on bases, while Petersburg's were made when the bases were clear, and the sacrifice hits and squeeze plays had to be resorted to to have the men over the plate.
